#13 Science English Presentation Lecture by OIST

On October 12, an English lecture was held by an instructor from the Okinawa Institute of Science and Technology (OIST), Mr. Thomas Holland. 2nd year students of the Mathematic and Science course are going to make English posters about their research. In this lecture, students learned how to make a good poster and how to make a good presentation. They had a chance to think about efficient ways of presentations. When making a presentation, there are many things to be careful about. For example, since we need to attract people's attention and make them interested in our research, we have to pay attention to our gestures.

Mr. Thomas lectured students in English, however, students seemed to understand the lecture fully. They had a wonderful opportunity to learn about efficient ways of presentation and they are sure to make use of what they learned from this lecture for their presentations in the future.
